Muslim Kingdom Established at Delhi:
Islam first came to India in the 8th century, when Arab traders were followed by armies and Muslims settled permanently in the Sind. The 1st wave of destruction and conquering invasions took place in the 10th century, when an Islamic dynasty of Turks moved into northern India from GHAZNI in Central Afghanistan. Led by their brilliant general Mohammed Ghori, who commanded an armored cavalry of Turks, Afghans and Persians, they defeated a Hindu coalition at Tarain in 1192 and then took Delhi + surrounding territory. The 1st ruler of Muslim India was QUTB- Ud-Din AYBAK, one of Mohammed Ghuri's slaves (it was common for slaves to rise to political eminence in Turkish culture) who was chiefly responsible for extending Turkish control over Benares, Gujarat and the whole of the north. His servant was to be named sultan of Delhi in 1206. The sultans survived until Delhi was sacked by TIMUR in 1398.

1206

As Islam spread, a MUSLIM sultanate was established in DELHI, India.

It soon expanded south absorbing many Hindu kingdoms including the Domain of the powerful YADAVAS dynasty.
